

Working with The Wollstonecraft Society we have put together a free weekly programme for young people over the holidays. Inspired by Mary Wollstonecraft's legacy, learners will learn about social justice causes, learn about different crafts, experiment and learn new skills and create 6 Craftivist pieces themselves expressing how they feel. This is a taster of the first week that can be completed off-line.

What is craftivism?

A Craftivist creates crafts for environmental responsibility, social justice, peace, love, and the challenge of bettering the world with crafts.

Who is Mary Wollstonecraft?

- British 'mother of feminism'
- Believed in girls' education
- Enlightenment philosopher
- Abolitionist
- Author
- Activist
- Revolutionary

Newington Green Meeting House is the only standing building connected to Mary's story.

Create a banner!

1. First you need to pick a cause you are passionate about
2. You could also choose one of Mary's political causes
3. Then you need to think about what your banner should look like, what it should say, and how you want it to make people feel
